Description:	Intelligent photoelectric smoke sensor sold with fire alarm systems

FM Approval Status: FM Approved

Hazard Involved: The above model smoke sensors have the potential to not properly communicate a fire alarm condition to the Fire Alarm Control Panel, causing the fire alarm system to fail to alert occupants of a fire in commercial buildings. The affected devices were manufactured between March 30, 2018 and January 14, 2019 (date code range 8034 through 9013) – about 22,000 units.

The manufacturer is conducting an exchange program for product that falls within the identified date code ranges (please see the attached CPSC Notice).

If you suspect you are in possession of such smoke sensors bearing the FM Approvals certification marking, please bring that to the attention of:
